Attention is called to the new sign across the building of Wm. Vischer & Son, "Bradbury Pianos." This firm have handled their goods for over eleven years and very many of the finest pianos in the village are of this celebrated make. They are as fine as the finest now made, and their special new features this spring make them particularly attractive. Quite a number here in town have been over three fourths of a century in use and attest their sterling worth. A Shoplifter Arrested.

Mansfield and Shelby have a sensation in the way of a shoplifter. Last week, a fine looking woman registered at one of the Mansfield hotels, as Mrs. Edith Smith of Orrville, O. She paid her hotel-bill in advance, and proceeded at once to the object of her visit to the city, viz. to get as many yards of silk goods into her possession without paying for them, as possible. Towards evening she packed her belongings, was assisted by the porter into the hack and then driven to the depot. On arriving at Shelby, she found she had some time to "practice" there, so she commenced on a merchant by the name of Beese, where, being discovered in the act of stealing a jacket, she came to grief and was arrested.

At last accounts, she was languishing in the Mansfield limbo, not yet having been admitted to bail.
